

Cedric Tremblay Candidate Statement

“Why would you be a good candidate for the role you are nominated for and how do you think you would be able to positively impact the society if elected?”

I would be a strong candidate for the role of Director on the ISEH Board of Directors because I have been deeply committed to this community since my first ISEH meeting in Melbourne in 2010, which sparked my enthusiasm for the society’s collaborative spirit and cutting-edge science. I joined the New Investigators Committee (NIC) in 2015 and served an extended five-year term, during which I helped establish the Junior Faculty Committee, creating programs to support early-career investigators. These experiences have given me insight into the society’s priorities and the challenges faced by members at different career stages.

Based in Winnipeg, Canada, I bring geographical diversity to the Board and am passionate about ensuring ISEH serves its global membership effectively. If elected, I would focus on initiatives that enhance mentorship, professional development, and networking, fostering stronger connections between junior investigators and established leaders. I am particularly committed to promoting diversity and inclusion, ensuring all members feel supported and represented, and helping ISEH remain a hub for collaboration, knowledge exchange, and scientific innovation.

Through my experience in committee leadership, program development, and community engagement, I have developed the skills to work collaboratively, manage complex initiatives, and drive projects to successful outcomes. I would bring this energy and expertise to the Board to support strategic planning, member-focused programming, and the society’s overall vision.

In summary, my long-standing dedication to ISEH, combined with my leadership experience, commitment to mentorship, and perspective from Canada, uniquely position me to serve effectively as Director. I am motivated by the opportunity to give back to the society that has shaped my career, and I am confident that I can make a meaningful and positive impact on ISEH and its members worldwide.
